Administrator of Woman's Estate Charges Him With Responsibility For Her Death in Accident

A $25,000 damage suit was filed in common pleas court today by William T. Green, administrator of the estate of Sarah C. Green, against Lorenzo J. Hagerty. The petition recites that on Christmas Day, 1918, while the plaintiff and four others were driving in an automobile about one mile west of Columbus Center they noticed a big machine approaching at a dangerous rate of speed, and the plaintiff pulled to the side of the road until the wheels were almost off the one side of the roadway. In spite of these precautions, the big high-powered, Marmon car of defendant crashed into them and by reason of the violent impact Sarah C. Green was struck by defendant's auto and thrown against the machine in which she was riding with great force and violence, hitting her internally, causing peritonitis from which she died six days later.

The petition alleges that the injuries and death of Sarah C. Green was caused by the unlawful carelessness, recklessness and negligence of the defendant, and prays the court to award the plaintiff damages in the sum of $25,000.

TOO MANY MOVING DAYS WIFE ASKS FOR DIVORCE

Alleging that he compelled her to move 12 times in the last year of their married life, Mina Underwood has filed a suit for divorce in probate court on Orange C. Underwood. They were married Dec. 1, 1913, and the petition alleges gross neglect of duty, plaintiff stating that she was compelled to work for her own support; that defendant failed to provide a home for her and she was compelled to move 12 times in four years; that defendant was possessed of an uncontrollable temper and was at all times cross and abusive towards the plaintiff, and as a consequence of which they have lived apart since Jan. 8, 1917. She also asks to be restored to her former name of Mina Farver. Frank C. Hite is attorney for plaintiff.

The ex-crown prince, it is said, will be charged with criminal offense, including looting and robbery with violence, committed in France.

A full list of the men whose surrender will be demanded has been completed. It was stated, and the steps which are to be taken to insure their surrender have been decided upon. Almost Foresaw Airships

Benjamin Franklin, who closely reported the aerial experiments he viewed in France in 1783, wrote: "The Improvement in the Construction and Management of the Balloons has already made a rapid progress; and one cannot say how far it may go. A few months since the idea of Witches riding thro' the Air upon Broomsticks, and that of Philosophers upon a bag of Smoke, would have appeared equally impossible and ridiculous. These Machines must always be subject to be driven by the Winds. Perhaps Mechanic Art may find easy means to give them progressive Motion in a calm, and to slant them a little in the wind."

Beautiful Biblical Story

The story of Ruth, in holy writ, is as refreshing as a thrush's note heard when a gate drives in from the east. She is the epitome of love and trust and fidelity. She lived in 1222 B. C. Clinging to her adopted mother when all else forsook Naomi, the youthful widow, Ruth comes with that broken mother in Bethlehem, for a famine was in their land of Moab. She goes humbly into the fields to glean corn after the reapers. There her modesty attracts the attention of the wealthy Boaz. The lovely love scenes follow. Boaz marries Ruth, and from their union was descended David, the ancestor of Mary, the mother of Christ.

JAPS CONTROL RICHEST LAND IN PHILIPPINES

Manila, Dec. 2.—Members of the Philippine legislature are becoming worried over the land problem, particularly as it refers to the acquisition of desirable agricultural lands by the Japanese.

The Japanese, official investigations recently disclosed, control the richest part of Luzon province, the greatest rice province in the islands, a few days' ride from Manila. A few days ago a great stir was caused by the Japanese purchase of a large sugar estate not many miles from Manila. As a result, this has been introduced in the house of representatives which would give to the residents of a municipality, in the jurisdiction of which an agricultural state has preference in the right to purchase and compel the owner to sell to such residents in the event that their offer is equal to that of the outsider.

LAUGHED AT REAL HEROISM

Soldier Insists Authorities Conferred Decoration for Deed That Was Merely Second Rate.

He had come back with the croix de guerre, but he would not talk about how he won it. Of course his family and friends knew the formal citation; but they wanted him to tell them the details, and he modestly and persistently evaded them.

"I think it's simply silly," declared an irate cousin in her teens. "What's the use of ducking and dodging, and pretending you're not a hero, when you know perfectly well you are?"

The woman turned. "Yes, of course I know I am," he assented coolly. "The trouble is, they didn't give me my cross for the right thing. Do you expect a fellow to talk about his heroism when he gets a decoration for doing what lots of other fellows did who weren't lucky enough to be noticed, and then finds the bravest thing he ever did, or ever expects to do, treated lightly or ignored altogether? At least, I was a hero once. Before we were ordered abroad, I was invited to luncheon by my colonel's daughter. Now, you know I am a country boy from an inland state. It was the first luncheon I'd ever attended—and the first time I'd ever been served raw oysters. I hate shellfish, and when I saw those six, soft, slimy, silthery horrors set before me I nearly fainted. But I didn't know whether anything much was to follow or not; and I couldn't decline a main dish under the eye of my hostess. I shuddered with disgust. I wasn't sure they would go down; I feared they might come up. But—I ate those oysters, all six, and smiled as I ate them! She told me so two years afterward, when I confessed. Now, I call that true heroism. But it wasn't what I got the cross for."

"Maybe," said the saucy young thing in her teens, "it's that you're going to get the girl for."

"No," sighed the unappreciated hero, "she agrees with the rest of you and General Mangin. She only laughs at my real claim to glory!"—Youth's Companion.

NEW SOURCE OF TURPENTINE

Tree in Central India to Be Looked To for Supply of Really Good Quality.

Turpentine oil and resin are already being produced on a commercial scale in India by the distillation of pine resin. A new source of supply which, though comparatively small, may be valuable, especially for Indian use, has now been found in frankincense or oilbalm. This material is obtained by the natives by making incisions in the stems of Boswellia serrata, a tree widely distributed throughout the dry zone forests of Central India. The resinous substance which exudes from the cuts contains a kind of turpentine, a resin and a gum.

Investigations of the methods of separating these constituents in a marketable form have been conducted since 1912 by the forest authorities in India, in co-operation with the Imperial institute, and the results have been published recently in a paper by R. S. Pearson, forest economist, and Parman Singh, chemical adviser, at the Forest Research Institute, Dehra Dun. The general conclusion reached, based on the results of numerous trials, is that the turpentine oil is equal to good quality American turpentine oil.

Abyssinian Likes American Styles

"I would like to see Abyssinian women dress like American women," is a remark credited to Prince Nadoa, the head of the Abyssinian mission in this country. This may be merely a bit of oriental flattery or it may be an indication of the prince's bravery. It should be remembered, first, that the sovereign of Abyssinia is a woman, and a descendant of the queen whose elegance and beauty of costume dazzled King Solomon's court, and in the next place that in Abyssinia style does not change more than once every thousand years, and that for that length of time the life of a man is free from all pecuniary worries incident to changing fashions and new dresses. Without any intention of forecasting trouble for the prince, it might be suggested that if this story should precede him he will have some explanations to make either to the queen or to the husbands and fathers of Abyssinia.

Faith in Adversity

Joe Fountain of Boonjack, Mich., was willing to plead guilty in court to the charge of making liquor, having a private still in his home. Prosecuting Attorney Lucas told the court that he tried to get a promise of reformation from Joe, a promise at least that he would refrain from drinking for the remainder of his life.

"Not me," was Joe's answer. "It might get wet again."

As Joe's infraction included only making a little spirits for his own use he was released on payment of the costs.—Daily Mining Gazette.

Rather Ominous

Among the presents given to a rural bride was one from an old lady in the neighborhood with whom the bride and the groom were prime favorites. Some years before the old lady had accumulated a number of cardboard mottoes, which she worked and framed as occasion arose.

In cheerful blues and reds, suspended by a cord of the same colors, over the table on which the other presents were gathered, hung this motto: "Fight On; Fight Ever."

No anti-red ordinance will command popularity in Cincinnati today.—New York Sun.

"In Old Kentucky"

Anita Stewart makes a startling leap on horseback over a broken bridge above a chasm, taking great risks. In a scene from the First National special feature, "In Old Kentucky," in which she stars. This great American classic is drawing capacity crowds to the Auditorium and will be seen tonight for the last time. The bridge is a draw over a ravine more than 100 feet deep. But the draw has been wrecked. In the story it is necessary for Miss Stewart to leap over this broken draw to reach a man who is lying unconscious in the road far beneath her, where the villain has placed a dynamite bomb beneath him. The horse, upon which she is mounted at first refuses to make the jump, but she starts again, and spurring it to the utmost speed, rides straight for the broken bridge. The horse rises to her spur and makes the jump. But it Laren's most recent starring vehicle, produced for Universal by Edward Kull under the supervision of Tod Browning, will be shown at the Auditorium theater tomorrow, Sunday.

The beauty of Mary MacLaren is so well known to theatergoers that she can well afford for once to disguise her good looks, which she does in parts of "The Pointing Finger." In the early part of the story she appears as Mary Murphy, a waif in an orphan asylum, and later on circumstances compel her to conceal her beauty under a frumpy disguise in order to get a position where good looks and youth are a liability.

"The Pointing Finger" is an adaptation of a well known magazine story by Frank R. Adams, and takes the leading character from the sordid surroundings of a run-down orphanage in the country to the home of a wealthy patron in a large city. She leaves the asylum under a cloud, for a crooked official of the institution takes advantage of Mary's escape to burden her with the accusation of a theft which he himself has committed.

A comedy, also Pathe News is shown in addition.

"Heartsease"
Interest has been aroused by the releasing of "Heartsease," the new Goldwyn picture, starring Tom Moore, which will be shown at the Auditorium Monday. The reason for this is that the production, which is laid on the other side has been so faithfully carried out that the most observing exclaim at its realistic beauty.

Not alone is the atmosphere of the old movie represented in this California-made photoplay, but its characters are all typical of that vicinity. Some of the principal actors are even foreigners. This, with expert art direction and correctness of settings, lends an absolute touch of realism that could not be obtained otherwise.

To begin with, Tom Moore, the likable Goldwyn star, is an Irishman. That alone gives him the distinctive stamp. He plays throughout the story with an ease and freedom that causes much admiration. Helen Chadwick as the exclusive young noblewoman, is a living example of what aristocracy may be. Her sincere love, her cold aversion to the villain's deceit, and her airs and manners stamp her as an actress well qualified to portray such a part.

Field's Minstrels
Baseball and dancing are undoubtedly the most popular diversions of the times. A baseball game on the commons, played by amateurs, will attract the crowds. A dance hall is always filled, both auditorium and dancing space. The masses dance as they have never danced before.

Every new dance has its devotees. Stage dancing has increased in popularity. (Continued on Page 7, Col. 4.)

reaches the opposite side by such a narrow margin, that broken bits of the bridge are kicked from beneath his feet into the chasm beneath.

"The Red Lantern"
The expenditure of a quarter of a million dollars, costumes worth a king's ransom and the services of 1,200 persons, from director, scenario writers and art designers to an ensemble that embodied a small army in size, represent but a part of the tremendous outlay in money, time and effort given by Metro to the production of "The Red Lantern," in which the incomparable Nazimova appears at the Auditorium theater on New Years Day.

"The Red Lantern" is truly colossal when it is judged by the combination of the supreme artistry of its brilliant star and by the sumptuous environment provided for her and her supporting cast. It has the added value of being based upon one of the most talked of novels of the decade. "The Red Lantern," a romance of the ancient city of Peking, from the pen of Edith Wherry, and published by the Bodley Head.

The total cost of producing "The Red Lantern" was in round figures $250,000. The time required to make it, was three months; eight weeks in actual production and four weeks devoted to elaborate research work carried out by June Mathis and Albert Capellani, who made the screen adaptation and scenario in order to insure absolute accuracy in the matter of Chinese life and customs.

In this the were aided by several assistant librarians in Los Angeles, and Hollywood, so that before a scene was photographed, they had amassed a wealth of material that assured authenticity in every detail.

ATTACKS ON THE PRESS.
 Certain elements of people are very much down on the newspapers. The Socialists for instance say the press is muzzled by business interests. Many people claim they can not get a square deal from the newspapers. Politicians are constantly quarrelling with them, because something is printed that they do not approve of.

There will always be some newspaper inaccuracy, because newspapers must necessarily be written and printed in a hurry. But attempts to penalize newspaper men for errors that were not malicious, or to suppress honest expression of opinion, are usually remedies worse than the disease.

Theaters sometimes exclude reporters who criticize too severely their productions. There has been an interesting illustration recently in the North Dakota Legislature, which passed rule excluding newspaper reporters who make inaccurate statements.

Such restrictions on newspapers are often made with a perfectly honest intent. The laws of the land however provide ample protection. If you attempt still more strict regulation, you curtail freedom of the press and in the long run injure the public. The politician with an ax to grind would find means to use such regulation in ways not originally intended and to his own advantage.

Public officials who are honest but incompetent, commonly dislike the prying that they need, and would be glad to see newspapers much more closely held down.

Many writers express themselves bitterly and harshly; but they hurt themselves more than anyone else. A misstatement is quickly denied and has little effect. If the Socialists who say the press is muzzled, ever got into power, they would suppress newspaper utterances much more than they are restricted now.

BUSINESS SUCCESS.

During the war people were amazed to see the new energy with which young people would take hold of work during their school and college vacations. Formerly the great majority of students spent vacations in sports and all kinds of good times. But during the war the jolly sporting life and indolent loafing of the former playtimes seemed to have lost its charm. The young folks all wanted jobs and they got them.

But since the war ended the same spirit seems to continue. The farm boys have their calf clubs and pig clubs and garden clubs. City and town boys are hustling for store and factory jobs. A great many of the girls also are working. This is seen not merely in the long summer vacation, but there has been a great demand for such employment during the present holiday recess.

There is a new spirit of ambition in the heart of Young America. Young people long to make their way in the world, to do big things. With splendid hope and courage they take hold of any kind of a job that will give them a start.

Magazines and newspapers reflect this spirit and inspire it. Where formerly they printed largely sentimental fiction, now a large part of their stories deal with business success. The boys' and girls' periodicals, which used to tell of sports and youthful padlines, now are full of stories showing how young folks had gone out into the world and were doing real things.

This spirit needs some higher ideal. Money making should not be the end of life. No one will be satisfied with his career, or win the affection of his associates, unless he devotes

Married Strangers

XXXVI.—A Festive Evening.
 Bennett and Sinclair were waiting in the lobby when Keitha and Marcia descended.
 Bennett's expression was comical.
 "What—in Heaven's name—have you two been doing?" looking them over incredulously. "You seem just the same. No change of gown or anything."
 "We've had a session with cold cream," replied Marcia meekly.
 "You've been gone long enough to have a Turkish bath," he returned and bundled them into a waiting car.
 "The violets are lovely," Marcia told Captain Sinclair with a trace of embarrassment. "It was very kind of you."
 "Violets seem to be your flower," returned the young officer simply.
 Bennett laughed.
 "Don't let him deceive you, Mrs. Holmes, I've heard him say that to no less than six girls in the past year," Sinclair flushed, but he refused to be embarrassed.
 "Perhaps that is because I am always strongly attracted to the violet type," he returned easily. "Did Bennett tell you what he planned for the evening?" he asked Keitha.
 "When you've been married, old man, you'll learn never to consult your wife about where you're going to take her," advised Bennett. "She's sure to object and throw cold water on the project."
 The car rolled up to the porte cochere of a brilliant restaurant. Rose-colored lights sent shafts of warmth through the heavy fur and music from a jazz orchestra drifted out of the revolving doors which swung constantly to the eager solicitation or arriving guests.
 Marcia Holmes looked around at the gay, smartly dressed throng, when they were seated at a table for four which bore a centerpiece of pink roses in a silver bowl.

WHAT PROMINENT NEWARK PEOPLE THINK.

Mr. Andrew S. Mitchell, well known lawyer of Newark, writes:
 "Why invest your money in other cities to build up a factory for them if as good or better investment can be had at home and at the same time build up our own city?"

Col. William Burke, head of the Burke Golf company, a prominent manufacturer of Newark, has this to say of the Pharis Tire and Rubber Company:
 "Much effort has recently been put forth by our Chamber of Commerce and citizens generally to induce new manufacturing industries to locate in Newark. This is quite commendable but in my opinion it is not only new industries which need our assistance but to look after the industries that we already have is quite important. But now is an opportunity for our Newark and Licking county investors to aid an industry that has been tried for at least five years and by the endorsement of all of our banks and many business men this enterprise is certainly worthy of notice. I refer to the PHARIS TIRE AND RUBBER COMPANY who are just energy to social service. But on the whole this ambition is a splendid spirit. It promises a new era achievement when the boys and girls of today get fully into the game.

Some people miss the chance to save many dollars, because they couldn't afford two cents to buy a copy of the Advocate containing many bargain announcements.

While modern school houses are highly desirable, it is not necessary to provide oriental rugs for the class rooms and tiled bath rooms for the janitors.

I'll Go 50-50 On New Years Reforms

BY KING W. LARDNER.
 To the Editor of the Advocate:—I am not betraying non-confidants when I say that the coming Thursday is New Year's in most states and the banks and a great many of the saloons will be closed which is generally known, but it may come like a surprise to some of my genial readers that the gov't. all most done away with New Year's. This is on acct. of they not being much less to swear off of so what was the use of having it they said. But then they happen to remember that most of the other months of the yr. starts with the first and it wouldn't be hardly fair to January to make it start with the 2d and besides it would mess up the week to take a Thursday out of it so after all they're going to let New Year and its everybody's duty to hurry and decide what resolutions they are going to make.

Personally I am up against a tough proposition as it is mighty hard for a man to cut out bad habits when he is going to make.

Then I say a word about that New Year's resolution that has got the habit of finding out what nights a person is going to take the 1130 out of the Grand center station and on these here nights she always comes right up and stands by your seat instead of standing by her elbow like a neat man and she stands there all the way to New Rochelle unless they's somebody with a seat that gets off at Mt. Vernon. A woman like this could have just as good a time if she would get the habit of spending her evenings in New Rochelle and going to the picture or something where she would be sure of getting a seat and not half to stand up in front of an innocent man's seat on the train and kind of look like she wished you would get up and stretch for 15 miles or something.

Speaking about this same train there's a guy on it with a conductor's suit that has got a nasty habit that I wish he would try and bust himself out of it and people would feel more friendly toward him. If a person lives in Conn. they can't buy themselves a family ticket to and from N. Y. city and back on acct. of Conn. not being in N. Y. state, but you can get a ticket between N. Y. city and Port Chester which is in N. Y. state and only about 3 miles from Greenwich, Conn. Well when this conductor bird comes through you give his your family ticket to Port Chester and he tears a chunk out of it and gives it back and then you pretend like you was a sleep both on his acct. and on acct. of the New Rochelle woman which I forgot to mention is very handy, but you don't no sooner leave Port Chester with only about 3 more miles to go when this bird comes up and says where are you going and you tell him Greenwich and he says 20 cents would take oysters from a baby.

Just Like Every Other House.
 Forthly there's a party going right in my house that has got the habit that every morning at the breakfast the Boston road and every time you drive past there going home and try to drive up the left fork witch is a whole lot shorter than main comes running out by his elbow like a neat man and he holds get over there on the right road even to strangers. This habit makes a person kind of nervous and sick and sometimes you don't get over it all the way home and this man is a big, strong healthy man that looks like he is big and strong enough to bust himself of a habit and he could do it if he tried and wished he would try and we would all have a better time and get home a little earlier in the bargain.

Tough on an Innocent Man.

That bigger strides than ever have been taken in motor car construction will be revealed in the Cleveland Automobile show, January 17-24. The lessons learned in the making of war products covered a wide mechanical field. At the time of last year's show, the industry had not the time to assimilate these lessons and the factories, intent on transforming to the peace basis as nearly as possible, could not put into their cars all the results of these war lessons.

During the past year the developments acquired through airplane and motor work have been assimilated and will be revealed in the new models which the manufacturers will introduce at show time.

While the automobile is a fairly standardized product, the changes predicted for the coming year are said to be among the most important ever effected.

Wall Street.
New York, Dec. 27.—Stocks were irregular at the opening of today's session but a resumption of yesterday's buying movement in stocks and affiliated industrial stock infused a measure of strength. Motors and their specialties also made moderate gains with copper. Speculative rails were in further demand with shipping and electric equipments. American Woolen left the specialties at an advance of four points.
Pools contributed substantially to the higher quotations registered during the day's brief but lively stock market session. Shorts were driven to cover in steels, equipments, coppers and motors. Where extreme gains of 2 to 5 points were numerous. Textile chemical, rubber and leather shares also were active and materially higher under lead of American Woolen, Virginia-Carolina Chemical and United States Rubber. History.
The stories of Alexander and Caesar, further than they instruct us in the art of living well, and furnish us with observations of wisdom and prudence, are not one whit to be preferred to the history of Robin Hood, or the Seven Wise Masters. I do not deny but history is very useful, and very instructive of human life; but if it is studied only for the reputation of being a historian, it is a very empty thing; and he that can tell all the particulars of Herodotus and Plutarch, Curius and Livy, without making any other use of them, may be an ignorant man with a good memory, and with all his pains, hath only filled his head with Christmas tales.—John Locke.

Awaits Reclamation.
The southern swamp lands have grown, rather than diminished, in area since the Civil war, because of the decay of rice growing. Many old rice fields have now fallen under the dominion of the swamp. But the bulk of this swamp country has always been wild although the adjacent uplands have been cultivated since colonial days. The swamps have always been a region of romance and legend. They have sheltered pirates and smugglers, bandits and bears and strange wild animals from foreign lands escaped off stranded vessels. No private citizen or organization has ever had the strength or courage to try to conquer them. Here and there a dent has been made in the edge—nothing more. The placing of these wild lands under the rule of the plow, like the conquest of the western desert, is a task for the whole strength of the nation.

Brown, and to have said stock declared to be subject to the payment of a mortgage held by The Home Building Association of Newark, Ohio, against the real estate of The Brown Realty company, and to prevent any holder of said stock from obtaining any part of the assets of said company until said company and said Jane Brown have been fully protected and reimbursed by reason of the execution of said mortgage which was made for the sole benefit and accommodation of said David C. Important to Retain Poise.
Above all things keep a grip on your courage. Don't let loose assertions poison the mind. Prove every position that offers advancement and every statement that offers you power and preference before you put yourself at their mercy. There are enough legitimate things to keep you busy. Let the great schemes that usually end in smoke die from neglect. Hold fast to things worth while even though they do not offer anything to rave about. In the end they will be seen to provide the bread and butter which the other scheme gave only in promise. So keep a grip on yourself. Learn to think and feel deeply and act what you are. The world is tired of shallow ravings and wants the touch of the genuine.—Grit.

Island in Uphill Fight.
Urk is a small speck of an island that lies in the middle of the Zyuder zee. It is old—so old that it bitterly resents the sea as a newcomer. While the Zyuder zee advances, Urk stubbornly huddles itself with dykes and fights for its existence. For hundreds of years Urk has been on the defensive, with the Zyuder zee steadily gaining ground. For a while the sea was satisfied merely to harass the island by constantly breaking through its dykes, but recently it has resorted to a deadlier form of warfare. It is gradually withdrawing the once abundant supply of fish, the island's main support.

Needed the Money.
Your charges are simply outrageous, complained the guest who was at the shore hotel for his health.
Hold on protested the landlord. You forget I'm not at this hotel for the same reason you are.—Boston Transcript.

SNAILS RETURNING TO PARIS

That is, They Are Again to Be Served in Smart Restaurants of the Gay City.

For the first time for years the Paris restaurants are now sending orders to the snail farms in the provinces, as well as to Italy and Switzerland. The snails are collected during June and July by women and children, and must be as tenderly handled as eggs, for on no account must the shell be cracked. At the farm they are placed one by one on grass in fine wire enclosures, and are fed on lettuce and cabbage. A large rubbage in an enclosure with two hundred snails will disappear in an hour.
A large business is done in "runners" (as the snails are called when they run about) all the year round to meet the tastes of less fastidious diners, and the largest gray-shelled snail—the best of the edible ones—is in danger of being exterminated by being collected during the breeding season.
"Runners" must not be packed with fresh grass or they will overeat themselves; have indigestion and so spoil their flavor. There are people who collect the larger gray shells to sell to the smaller restaurants that an inferior order of snail, or even the humble mussel, may be substituted.
The snail which is to tempt the palate of the epicure must not be eaten before the last week in September. The snails are usually packed in flat boxes or baskets containing from 1,000 to 1,500 each. Their storage is not an easy matter, for they must be kept at a carefully regulated temperature, for a degree too much heat will deceive them into the belief that spring has arrived, and they will wake and crawl about.

SECOND TIME WAS THE LAST

Impulsive Youngster Gave Promise Not to Disturb Neighbor, Through Thoughtlessness, Again.

Mother and I had just moved to a new flat in a row where the entrances were all similar. The first evening when I came home I passed our entrance without observing the number.
Finding the outside door open I ran up to the second floor, tried my key, and could not unlock the door. Then I knocked and, hearing no response, shook the door violently. When a strange man in a dressing gown opened the door I apologized profusely.

The next evening when I ran up the stairs, tried my key, and heard a man's heavy tread approaching I had sense enough to realize my mistake and made a dive for the outside door.
Just then the man's voice called over the rail: "Who is it?"
"Oh," I said, "I'll never do it again," and I never did.—Chicago Tribune.

Undecisive Character.

A person of undecisive character wonders how all the embarrassments in the world happened to meet exactly in his way, to place him just in that one situation for which he is peculiarly unadapted, but in which he is also willing to think no other man could have acted with facility or confidence. Incapable of setting up a firm purpose on the basis of things as they are, he is often employed in vain speculations on some different supposable state of things, which would have saved him from all this perplexity and irresolution. He thinks what a determined course he could have pursued if his talents, his health, his age had been different; if he had been acquainted with some one person sooner, if his friends were, in this or the other point, different from what they are; or if fortune had showered her favors on him. And he gives himself as much license to complain as if all these advantages had been among the rights of his nativity, but refused, by a malignant or capricious fate, to his life.—Rev. John Foster.

Bees Took Carload of Sugar.

Near the station of Fontainebleau, France, a carload of crystallized sugar was held up and within four days the entire load had disappeared in spite of the guards.
Not far from the station of Avon there are large bee farms, and while the bees covered the car in swarms no one supposed that they could carry away the crystallized sugar. Nor could they. But industriously and ingeniously they betook themselves to nearby basins and fountains and carried drops of water to melt the sugar! The dampened sugar formed a sirup that was easily transported to the hives.

Australia's Pride in Warships.

The commonwealth is proud of its warships and particularly of its battle cruiser which saved Sydney and Melbourne from bombardment at the outbreak of the war. The Australian Arts club has shown its pride in a practical way by presenting a selection of paintings, drawings and etchings to the ward room of H. M. A. S. Australia. All the gifts were the work of members of the club, which included some of the leading artists of the commonwealth. In return, Commodore Dunmore entertained the committee of the club at luncheon on the battle cruiser, which has been stationed in Farm Cove, Sydney harbor, since its return from the North sea.

He Felt Shop-Worn.

boy convalescent in a recuperation hospital, when a sawhorse came his way.

TO RESTORE HISTORIC SPOT

City of New Orleans Taking Steps to Preserve and Beautify Bienville's Landing Place.

An effort is being made in New Orleans to restore the old historic spots around the city. With the restoration of the old Place d'Armes, the rehabilitation of the Cabildo and the Pontalba apartments which surround it, and the preservation of all as an artistic center for the old French and Spanish quarter, an effort is being made to restore and preserve the landing place of Bienville, where he first set foot on the high land in 1720, at the place he was destined to convert into Nouvelle Orleans. This landing place, which lies on the river directly facing the Place d'Armes, which is now Jackson square, is covered with the switch tracks of the Southern Pacific and public belt railroads, and with a part of the large steel warehouse belonging to the board of commissioners of the port of New Orleans.

Supporters of the Louisiana State museum have appealed to the mayor and the various civic organizations to have these sheds and railroad tracks removed at once, inasmuch as the land, clear from the Cabildo to the river itself, was expropriated some time ago to be put in historical and artistic reserve. As all the water front of New Orleans and the east bank of the river belongs to the city and state forever, the completion of the artistic center is sure of accomplishment.

ACCEPTED MANDATE OF FATE

Young English Soldier Proved Himself Worthy When Called to Position of Responsibility.

When Rudyard Kipling's "The Man Who Would Be King" was published it was regarded as an excursion into the improbable, if not the impossible.
It was the Anglo-Saxon imagination accepted by the colorful Hindustani civilization.

But the sober chronicles of the war have outdone Kipling. Thorneycroft, a twenty-two-year-old British trooper, found himself stranded in Turkey after Townsend's ill-fated offensive.
Nothing daunted, he accepted his predicament as a mandatory of Fate. He proceeded to rule over a territory containing 60 villages and 60,000 people, and he ruled them until relieved by the martial law brought by Allenby's troops. The son of a hotel keeper of Bristol, he proved at the test that he was of imperial fiber.

Truth is stranger than fiction. It always has been and always will be, with Tommy Atkins or his first cousin the doughboy, as protagonist. Each possesses the comic spirit that means adaptability, no matter what the emergency.

Marshal Joffre a Catalanian.

Possibly with more reason than the seven claimants to the birthplace of Homer, Catalonia makes out a good case for asserting that Marshal Joffre belongs to her by right of birth. The great estoppee of the German first offensive is a native of Perpignan, where the Catalanian race predominated in past ages and where today are found many families which still retain Catalanian customs and language. Leading business firms of Catalonia, seeking to establish a tangible claim, have appointed a committee which is to proceed to Paris and present a sword to the great warrior, unless he fulfill a promise made at the peace conference that he will visit Catalonia, in which case the presentation will be made at Barcelona. This, of course, would be the occasion of a great celebration.

Mexicans Hold Strange Beliefs.

Few countries are richer in strange beliefs than Mexico, writes Charles Bernard Nordhoff in the Atlantic Monthly. There the witches assume the eyes of cats and fit through the night on vampire's wings. A brisk business is done in love potions and candle flames still point the way to buried treasure. The Mexican inherits his cruelty to domestic beasts from both the Spaniard and the Indian, and his superstitions may be traced to the same double source.

Eccentricity is not understood in Mexico. The native is a lover of formality, and one is judged largely by external things. Each man dresses according to his station, and it is unthinkable that a well-to-do man should wear a straw sombrero or carry a serape; the peons would be the first to jeer at him.

Painstaking Work.

A French critic who complained of the hasty composition and lack of fine writing among his compatriots drew from M. Pierre Louys, the author of "La Femme et le Pantin," a pained and precise denial of the charge. M.
Louys, who has not published anything in several years, says that he has been diligently occupied on a work which he rewrites and corrects a hundred times to each page. This and other works which he has not yet considered worthy of publication have accumulated until he has on hand more than 200 pounds of manuscript.

The Croix de Guerre.

The croix de guerre, corresponding to the military cross of Britain and the iron cross of Germany, will be noticeable henceforth on the breasts of Frenchmen, civilian as well as military, who have been distinguished by being mentioned in the dispatches. It is made of Florentine bronze, about an inch and a half in diameter, with crossed swords between the arms.

AMUSEMENTS

ity and many new dances have been introduced.
Al. G. Field has kept up with the times in his selection of dancers and dances. In his third of a century production, a dancing spectacle entitled "Derby Day at Churchill Downs," the dancing corps in the Nations' Dances, composed of the dances of all countries, including England, Scotland, Ireland, Spain, France and America, will be a pronounced feature.

A burlesque Russian dance, an oriental costumed dance and the popular minaret dances of this country. The United States leads in the popular dances of the world. The rhythm of the music of the American dances has made them popu-other dances originated in this country.

opportunities for spectacular work are fully realized by Lincoln, and he is the moving spirit in a number of the most thrilling scenes that have been enacted on the screen since it became the center of focus for amusement seekers throughout the world.

"Heartase."

When Tom Moore comes to the Alhambra theater in "Heartase," Sunday, he not only brings his delightful personality, backed by the support of a finished cast, but he portrays the subtle effect of music on a man who, through a vicious assault, has become indifferent to almost all impressions.
The story presents him in love with a girl who, through a misunderstanding, accepts the proposal of another involved in the structure of the plot.

are popular in the old world. They are presented by William O'Brien, Leo Doran, Ed Kennedy, William Doran, Frank Miller, Sherman Dorn, Ed Uhrig, Ed Ewald, Bert Swain, Jimmie Cooper and Garner Neppin. Such an array of light-footed stepsters have never been brought together in one company here before.

Al. G. Field Minstrel's will appear at the Auditorium theater on Tuesday afternoon and evening. Seats now selling.

"The Birth of a Race."
The Auditorium advertises several big features for the coming week, one being the feature photoplay, "The Birth of a Race." This feature cost a million dollars in the making and employed 10,000 persons. It comes for one day on next Wednesday, the screenings being continuous.

ALHAMBRA.

"The Romance of Tarzan." Elmo Lincoln, the appeared hero of is the theft of the young man's opera by the fiancée of the girl of his dreams.

It was she who inspired the master song of the work which was to bring him fame, and who was the only one to hear it. When the opera was stolen, the thief, a nobleman, had instructed his henchman to intimidate the composer. The henchman succeeded so well that his assault upon the musician resulted in the latter's losing his memory from a blow on the head.

"The Hidden Truth." Anna Case, the beautiful grand opera singer, will be seen in her first picture, "The Hidden Truth," which is released by Select Pictures on Monday and Tuesday at the Alhambra theater.

Helen Merrill, a beautiful girl with a wonderful singing voice and a refined manner, is out of place as an entertainer in Bill Sheridan's saloon and dance hall in Nugget City. Another girl in the resort is Myrtle Cadby, whose husband, a drunkard and a bully, treats her abusively and takes all of her earnings.

A native of San Francisco, Elmo Lincoln in his own life exemplifies many of the striking principles of strength-building through natural living that are brought out so forcefully in the depiction of Tarzan's character on the screen. As a baby, Lincoln contracted a severe case of meningitis, which left him with a weak physique.
Determined to overcome this handicap, however, he took up the study of physical culture early in life, and for many years spent all of his days and many of his nights in the open, eating the simplest and most nutritious foods and rigorously eschewing alcohol and tobacco in all forms. By the time he was ready to enter high school young Lincoln was the tallest and strongest boy of his age in San Francisco.

In "The Romance of Tarzan" great ing shark, salt the Golden Chance mine and attempt to sell it to Charles Taylor, a rich New Yorker. Taylor sends George Reed, a mining expert in whom he has absolute confidence, to investigate the mine. Reed sees through the fraud at once but offers to keep quiet and put the deal over if the results are split three ways.

One day Cadby is particularly natural to his wife, Helen, tries to protect her against her husband's tirades.
He throws Helen down and advances to the bed of his wife where she is lying ill. She picks up Helen's pistol and kills her husband. Before she dies, Myrtle gives Helen a letter to a man in New York, to whom she was supposed to have gone when she ran away and married her husband. She tells Helen to take the letter and go to him, as he was her father's mining partner at one time and will treat her well.

DODGE BROTHERS APPOINT DEALER

J. S. Curtis Will Sell Popular Detroit Car In This Territory.

Announcement is made by Dodge Brothers, Detroit, of the appointment of J. S. Curtis as their dealer in this city.

Mr. Curtis will occupy the west part of the K. P. building on East Main street with a complete salesroom and service station. His territory includes Licking county.

The remarkable popularity of the Dodge Brothers Motor Car has caused automobile men all over the country to clamor for sales privileges, but Dodge Brothers policy of quality in selling methods as well as quality in the car, requires a painstaking investigation in every instance before a selection is made. In Mr. J. S. Curtis, Dodge Brothers have a dealer on whom they believe they may rely for both progressiveness and fair business methods.

The prompt manner in which Dodge Brothers assumed one of the foremost positions in the automobile industry is regarded as a striking testimonial to the high regard in which their name was held by the public even before they marketed a motor car bearing his name. Prior to that time Dodge Brothers had built the vital parts for more than a half-million other cars, establishing a reputation for thoroughness and mechanical skill.

A Tight Fit.
I thought you said the vest you sold me last week would not shrink? cried the indignant customer, as he stalked wrathfully into the haberdasher's shop. Quite right sir, replied the manager affably, if it should shrink all you have to do is to hand it back and we will give you a new one.

That's just what I meant to do, snapped the customer, but I was caught in the rain and now I can't get the beastly thing off.—Atlanta Journal.
